this book is about enforcing privacy and data protection it demonstrates different approaches regulatory legal and technological to enforcing privacy if regulators do not enforce laws or regulations or codes or do not have the resources political support or wherewithal to enforce them they effectively eviscerate and make meaningless such laws or regulations or codes no matter how laudable or well intentioned in some cases however the mere existence of such laws or regulations combined with a credible threat to invoke them is sufficient for regulatory purposes but the threat has to be credible as some of the authors in this book make clear it is a theme that runs throughout this book carrots and soft law need to be backed up by sticks and hard law the authors of this book view privacy enforcement as an activity that goes beyond regulatory enforcement however in some sense enforcing privacy is a task that befalls to all of us privacy advocates and members of the public can play an important role in combatting the continuing intrusions upon privacy by governments intelligence agencies and big companies contributors to this book including regulators privacy advocates academics smes a member of the european parliament lawyers and a technology researcher share their views in the one and only book on enforcing privacy the volume presents an extensive investigation into the process of reforms of detention powers in today s china and offers an in depth analysis of the debates surrounding the reformist attempts the chapters in this collection demonstrate that legislative and institutional reforms in this area result from political opportunities openings and tensions at the central institutional levels of political authority and contingent social and political factors the book examines legal and institutional reforms to institutions of detention and imprisonment that have occurred since the 1990s with a particular focus on the 21st century its content follows three particular lines of enquiry concerning the issue of deprivation of liberty in contemporary china the first deals with the academic and theoretical debates on the subject of imprisonment and detention the related chapters explain the difficulties encountered in this area of research and understandings of the discourses of reform through labour in western and chinese scholarship the second deals with the specific issues of criminal and administrative forms of deprivation of liberty examining in particular the institutional and legislative dimensions considering the relationship between reforms and criminal justice policy agendas the third assesses the meaning of institutional reforms in the context of the changing state society relationship in contemporary china the women peace and security wps agenda is celebrated as a landmark global framework for achieving gender equality in peace and security governance its power is visible in two decades of united nations resolutions national action plans regional initiatives and countless activist academic and philanthropic projects yet despite this vitality it is haunted by failure as a lack of political will and stubborn patriarchal resistance frustrate its promise this book offers a groundbreaking critical account of the wps agenda exploring its evolution in relation to the wider politics of global governance and feminism paul kirby and laura j shepherd argue that wps is not a settled cohesive policy but a field in flux defined and disrupted by a growing number of national supranational subnational and transnational agents who in turn act on an expanding catalogue of threats from climate change to homophobia challenging traditional boundaries of peace and security kirby and shepherd reconceptualize wps as a policy ecosystem tracing interaction and contestation around the agenda across levels from the un security council to military alliances to feminist activists they combine analysis of a vast dataset of policy documents with key informant interviews and close readings of diplomacy statecraft the politics of indigeneity counterinsurgency antimilitarism human rights and the arms trade across the first twenty years of wps far reaching and incisive governing the feminist peace poses a provocative question what if we abandoned the idea of the wps agenda as a unified political project altogether it is clear by now that the label arab spring has proven too simplistic to describe the uprisings that upended the political order of the arab world in late 2010 brutal crackdowns and civil conflict in syria libya and yemen dashed the hopes that peaceful democratic revolutions would sweep the region in other countries the departure of authoritarian leaders led to many false starts without producing democratic conclusions societies that had appeared united in opposition suddenly seemed fractious youth were once again banished to the political margins reconstructing the middle east examines the changes that happened within the region from 2010 and the long term challenges and opportunities they present featuring the work of authors with a diversity of perspectives most of whom hail from the region it addresses key issues of political economic and societal changes the role of young people and of the international community in addition the book deals with the questions of both political and economic reform and the intertwined nature of the two political reform that allows greater participation will fail to quell frustration if arabs continue to feel that their job prospects are bleak similarly arabs will not accept economic reform that restores growth but continues to fence off the political sphere this book offers a unique perspective on the uprisings by focusing on specific issue areas where change is needed and offering a roadmap for the long road towards state building and new social contracts based on political inclusion respect for pluralism and sustained economic growth as such it will be a valuable resource for students and scholars of middle east politics as well as those with an interest in the arab spring
